Educational Series

The Brain: Living With Epilepsy

The Hickok Center for Brain Injury hosts a free Brown Bag Educational Panel entitled “The Brain – Living With Epilepsy” on Monday, March 29, 2010 at their Rochester Center located at 114 South Union Street, 14607 from 11:30 a.m. - 1 p.m. The panel will feature: J. Craig Henry, MD, Assistant Professor of Neurology, Strong Epilepsy Center; A. James Fessler, III, MD, Assistant Professor of Neurology at University of Rochester and Director of Clinical Research and Assistant Director, Strong Epilepsy Center; and, Michael Radell, Community Educator, Epilepsy Foundation of Rochester. Bring your lunch and learn about the medical and social issues of living with epilepsy. If you or someone you know or love has epilepsy, here is an opportunity to learn and ask questions from area professionals. Lot and street parking available. Seating is limited. To make a reservation, please call 585-271-8640x207 or email ghewson@hickokcenter.org to reserve a seat.

Prior to joining the faculty of Strong Epilepsy Center, Dr. Henry began working in Rochester in the field of developmental disabilities, attended SUNY Buffalo, and completed residency training in Neurology at the University of Rochester. Dr. Fessler graduated from Johns Hopkins University, received his MD from Vanderbilt University in Nashville, TN, and completed his training in Neurology at Duke University and in Epilepsy at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, MN. Mike Radell was diagnosed with epilepsy his freshman year at Niagara University. Upon graduation he worked with the Center for the Disabled in Albany. He later joined the Epilepsy Foundation of Rochester where he has also worked as a Service Coordinator, a Job Tech Coordinator helping individuals with epilepsy find employment, and Employment Solutions Program Manager. More information is available about these panelists: 585-271-8640x207.
